Introducing Kittens to Cats and Other Animals

Introducing Kittens to Cats and Other Animals

If you have been a cat parent for some time, you are sure to know how affectionate and lovable these awesome feline munchkins are. They are incredibly loving and expressive when it comes to their loved ones, and rarely shy away from making their human parents the centre of all their admiration.

However, as affectionate as these adorable furballs are, they are introverted and reserved by their very nature, which can take you some time to earn their trust and love. And since first impressions do matter when dealing with these awesome fur babies, it is important to treat them gently and with care in your introducing cat or bringing a new cat home to lay a solid foundation for a long and loving relationship. Since most cat parents often fret about how to introduce a cat to a dog or how to make cats like each other, this article is a brief guide to introducing cats.

Introducing cats to each other

Cats might take some time to connect and trust each other, making it important to know how to make cats like each other or how to introduce new cat to old cat. Given below are some tips to help you get started with introducing cats when it comes to how to introduce new cat to old cat.

- Confinement

  Keep the new cat confined when it comes to introducing cats to allow it to grow familiar and comfortable with the new place and avoid any warning signs when introducing cats. Using a carrier box to keep the new cat confined in its own room is an effective way when it comes to how to introduce new cat to old cat. Confinement is especially helpful if you are worried about how to introduce a kitten to a cat.

- Swap scents

  Swapping scents can go a long way in terms of how to introduce new cat to old cat. This is because the scent is a major part of feline communication and can encourage both cats to be more accommodating towards each other.

- Avoid aggressive meetings

  Avoiding aggressive meetings is crucial if you are thinking about how to introduce a kitten to a cat. Older cats might feel territorial and jealous about the new kitten in their personal space, so it is important to avoid aggressive meetings that might lead to resentment and fear, making it easier for you to understand how to introduce a kitten to a cat.

- Make cats see each other

  It is important to make the two cats see each other without interacting directly. Being able to see each other helps cats grow familiar without getting stressed and eliminate threats.

- Make cats spend time together

  Wondering how to introduce a kitten to a cat? When your fur babies have been acquainted with each other, you can let them meet and interact. Most cat parents worry about how to make cats like each other, and letting them meet and spend time together can allow you to watch out for warning signs when introducing cats.

- Take precautionary measures

  When it comes to how to introduce new cat to old cat, precautionary measures such as playing games together, and offering Whiskas’ premium cat food as treats as an incentive for good behaviour can be helpful in how to make cats like each other.

Introducing a Cat to Dog

In the wild, dogs are often natural predators of cats, especially kittens. In addition, their larger size makes dogs perceived as a potential threat to cats, so it is important for cat parents to know how to introduce a cat to a dog without stirring up animosity. Mentioned below are some points to consider if you are thinking about how to introduce a kitten to a dog.

- Slow and steady works

  When it comes to bringing a new cat home, or how to introduce a kitten to a dog, it is always a good idea to start slow and steady to avoid any fights or resentment.

- Set controlled meetings

  Setting up controlled meetings can be a great start to introducing cats that can allow you to observe your fur babies for any animosity and avoid warning signs when introducing cats. Allowing the new cat to take its own time to initiate a conversation can be helpful in allowing you to understand how to introduce a kitten to a dog.

- Keep them separate initially

  When it comes to how to introduce a cat to a dog, rather than have cats and dogs meet immediately, keeping them separate can be an effective way to initiate a conversation. You can also use a screen door or a baby door to keep them separate and look out for warning signs when introducing cats.

- Let pets meet and spend time together

  Are you wondering how to introduce a cat to a dog? Since cats and dogs are both loving by nature, allowing them to meet and interact in a controlled setting can help ease their stress and grow friendly with each other. If you are thinking about how to introduce a kitten to a dog, it is important that you train your dog to treat other animals gently.

- Supervise the pets directly

  You need not worry about how to introduce cats to a dog. However, it is still important to supervise the pets directly and avoid any unwelcome events that can dampen the friendly spirits when introducing cats to your dogs.

How to Introduce Cats to Other Pets

Most cats are amazingly patient, loving, and affectionate with other cats as well as other animals, making it easier for cat parents to bring home a new kitten or adopt other pets when they already have a cat at home.

Pets like ferrets, rabbits, tortoises, guinea pigs, and dogs are most comfortable living with cats and can be great pets to have along with a furry feline. However, if you are wondering how to introduce cats to a new pet, it is always important to keep them separated for some time before introducing them in controlled environments, allowing them to get familiar to each other without being stressed out or causing aggression, fear, and resentment.

Hence, when introducing your new feline furry to your existing pets or vice versa, just take things slow and make sure to watch out for warning signs when introducing cats like aggression or stress in all the animals concerned.

Caution tips for introducing cats

In addition to following the above-mentioned steps for introducing cats to other feline little furries or other pets at home, mentioned below are some caution tips to keep in mind.

- Be very gentle, cautious, and slow when introducing a new fur baby to your existing pets or vice versa.
- Set up an isolation station if any of the pets start to feel aggressive and acts out.
- Allow the new cat to explore the house to feel more comfortable in the setting before introducing it to your other pets.
- Offer toys and Whiskas' premium cat food as positive reinforcement to allow the new cat to grow more comfortable.

FAQs

All Questions Socialising
Filter by

- All Questions
- Socialising

5

1. Which is the best pet to have with a cat?

   Housecats are completely harmless and are generally accommodating to other animals, making it easier for cat parents to adopt other pets. Ferrets, dogs, tortoises, guinea pigs and rabbits are the best pets to have if you already own a cat.

2. Should we bring a cat or a dog first?

   Dogs generally need longer time to be trained, so, if you are looking to get a dog, as well as a cat, it is important to bring home a middle-aged dog first and train it accordingly before getting a kitten.

3. Can you train a dog to live with a cat?

   Considering how wild dogs prey on smaller animals, it is important to train a dog to live with a cat. Most dogs are open to training and can be taught how to treat smaller animals gently to live with cats.

4. How long does it take for cats to get along?

   Cats are reserved and introverted, which takes them a longer period of time to befriend and get along with other cats. Although they are accommodating and affectionate, most cats take 3 to 4 months to get along with each other.

5. When is the time to seek professional help?

   Introducing to a new pet can be stressful for cats, but they are accommodating and are quick to learn. However, if your cat is still stressed of the new pet after months, it might be time to seek professional help.

SEE ALL

READ MORE

READ MORE

READ MORE

READ MORE

Source URL:
https://www.whiskas.me/care/kitten/socializing-a-kitten/introducing-kittens-to-cats-and-other-animals